URBAN SPACE

Festivalens udstillinger i byrummet. Her kan man opleve fotokunst i undergrunden, når de københavnske metrotog viser smagsprøver på de mange forskellige fotografiske genrer, som kan opleves på festivalen. På Byens Hegn ved udvalgte gadekryds, parker og torve over hele København er der fotoudstilling i stort format, hvor de enkelte motiver går i dialog med det omgivende miljø.

I Rigsdagsgården kan man opleve udstillingen Lige nu med Lærke Posselt, Maria Fonfara, Sofie Amalie Klougart, Charlotte Haslund-Christensen og Kent Klich. Folketinget har givet de fem fotografer frie hænder til at fortolke et af fem centrale temaer ved ændringen af grundloven i 1915: ligestilling, rettigheder, deltagelse, fællesskab og ildsjæle.

URBAN SPACE

There will be several exhibitions in public spaces as part of the festival programme. Experience photography on the subway – Copenhagen's Metro trains will display a wide range of photographic work represented at the festival. Spread out over Copenhagen's parks, crossroads, and squares, the green Cool Construction Metro fences will showcase large format photo works from some of the festival's exhibitors. The selected images will form a dialogue with their surroundings.

In the Urban Space exhibition Equality, Here and Now, The Danish Parliament gave five photographers; Lærke Posselt, Maria Fonfara, Sofie Amalie Klougart, Charlotte Haslund-Christensen, and Kent Klich free rein to each interpret one of five themes that were central to the amendment of the Constitutional Act in 1915: equality, rights, participation, fellowship and activists.
